Thrilling and Alarming Incident at the Amberst Jail.

[Lynchburg News.]

About 11 o'clock night before last, just before retiring, Mr. John L. Lee, a lawyer of Amberst Coarthouse, heard the most uncarthly shrieks apparently from the courthouse law, but at first supposing them to comanate from some drunken parties, he did not go immediately to look after the matter. But the cries continuing and increasing in tone of distress, he rushed out in his shirt-sleves and proceeded rapidly to the jail, whence the noise came. He hastened in and found one of the rooms all on fire and the three prisoners well nigh suffocated so that they could scarcely whisper. He entered the cells with buckets of water, and, with the assistance of Mr. E. S. Morrel, who had by this time arrived, extinguished the flames, and was thus instrumental in saving three lives.
